

APPLY TO TEAM TEACH IDS 220:

Offered every spring by the Institute for the Liberal Arts (ILA), this course is an always-changing exploration of the human experience. It is team taught by graduate student instructors from the humanities, the social sciences, and the sciences, under the guidance of Dr. Rose Deighton-Mohammed as faculty mentor.

As part of an interdisciplinary teaching team, you will learn methodological and pedagogical approaches that will continue to inform your teaching throughout your career.

Members of the teaching team will meet twice during the Fall 2026 semester to discuss the specifics of the course to be offered Spring 2027. All members of the teaching team will share responsibilities for all aspects of the course, including developing the topics, syllabus, readings, presentations, leading class discussions and group activities, and designing and grading assignments.

TO APPLY: Submit a CV and a brief statement explaining how your research relates to the question "What does it mean to be human?" online by October 9, 2026
